The late acquisition of learning in multiple sclerosis: an evaluation of serial learning trials at a single time point. Individuals with Multiple Sclerosis (MS) experience progressive cognitive impairments, particularly in learning and memory. The aim of this investigation was to identify, in an MS population, potential deficiencies in memory acquisition, using the Serial Reaction Time Task (SRTT). The SRTT was a complex, procedural, visuomotor task, requiring frequent and sustained attention to learn the correct keys. It was undertaken pre-acutely and 4 weeks following a period of formal cognitive rehabilitation. Compared to healthy controls, the MS group demonstrated a relative increase in reaction time for each of the first three learning trials and, following initial learning, an apparent decline in performance on subsequent trials. This latter effect may reflect the retention of initial learning deficits, or the late acquisition of learning in MS.Q: Compilation Error: The namespace or module 'Microsoft.ServiceBus' does not exist in the namespace 'Microsoft.Azure.Cosmos' I'm following the docs at to get started in the Azure Cosmos DB emulator. I'm building in Visual Studio 2017 Community. When I try to use the CosmosDbClientBuilder object, I get the error "The namespace or module 'Microsoft.ServiceBus' does not exist in the namespace 'Microsoft.Azure.Cosmos'." What does this mean? I've seen this error when trying to use Microsoft.Data.SqlClient, but I don't see why it should apply to Microsoft.Azure.Cosmos or Microsoft.ServiceBus. Using: Microsoft.Azure.Cosmos dotnet --version: 2.2.105 A: Looks like I was running under the wrong version of .NET. My project was set to 2.2, which probably does not have access to Microsoft.ServiceBus, but I think I found the answer here. This Azure Cosmos SDK uses 4.3.2.0 of .NET, which includes Microsoft.ServiceBus (as long as you run under .NET Framework 4.6, which is what the projects I'm working on do). It is with great pleasure that I have been selected to be the Chair of the 9th Annual Greek Cookbook Festival, held on Oct. 23-25, 2018 at the Riverfront Banquet Center in
