I have a system that creates shortcuts for a variety of purposes. Currently, the script loops through a set of files and runs Windows Explorer to create a shortcut. This works fine, but I'd like to convert this into a background task so that it runs at night without the user's consent. Theoretically, I could open a CMD window and try to execute Windows Explorer, but I think there is some kind of security restriction that prevents me from doing this. Is there a way I can set up a shortcut programmatically? I need to be able to specify the location on the C:\ drive, but there are a variety of other properties I'd like to
