Gestational diabetes is one of the leading causes of maternal mortality. Data from the United Nations Statistics Division show that in 2011, there were an estimated 801,100 deaths due to complications of pregnancy (1), whereas in the United States in 2008, approximately 2430 maternal deaths were reported (2). In Pakistan, maternal mortality ratio (MMR) was 380/100,000 live births in 2011 (3). At present, 95% of maternal mortality can be avoided by addressing maternal and neonatal health program (MNHP) in both developed and developing world. WHAT IS GESTATIONAL DIABETES (GDM)? {#sec1-2} ===== Gestational diabetes mellitus is a common glucose intolerance condition that appears in the second or third trimester of pregnancy. 1.2y.6 is a: Finding algorithm complexity when using inner-most loop condition. (Dynamic Programming) I am working on a dynamic programming problem where the inner most loop condition is checking if an element is in the open list, and then checking if it is also in the closed list. All these are toggled until the open list is empty or the open list is completely open. In order to find the time complexity of this algorithm, it would seem that you have to use the number of positions that you are flipping, but I am unclear if the loop condition that is within the number of positions or how the number of positions is calculated. Does anyone have any advice? A: It seems like the loop isn't reducing the size of the open list. So you can do it in  $O(N)$  time, because an iteration has at worst  $O(1)$  time. If you look at the complexity of the problem, when you talk about the number of iterations being the complexity, that's the number of times you decrease the size of the open list, so you have  $O(n*(1-n))$  iterations at worst. The number of positions would correspond to the number of times you decrease the size of the open list. Protein-Protein and Nuclear Pore Complexes interact with bacterial DNA Jan 9, 2015 by Arpana Kulkarni Abstract Proteins have been implicated in several cellular processes through an interaction with nucleic acids. However, the protein-protein interactions with nucleic acids are less understood than the protein-DNA interactions. Here
