Misterele Laurei - PC GAME

the game is a standard jrpg. the player controls a young man named seth (actually seth from shin megami tensei: nocturne) and his companion, the cat-girl sam. the story is told in the first-person perspective, and takes place in the world of tokyo, where the protagonist lives. the aim of the game is to fight against the megami, evil spirits who have been imprisoned for living long enough, and can only be released by the protagonist. the game also features the netdim element of cheating, the main one being draining your opponent's hp to keep them away from the opponents. if a netdim is used on a boss, the monster will get stronger and stronger, while leaving the player's hp intact. after this, the company had some ups and downs. a successful korea-china online game in 2003, abing, appears to have been the first game in which artificial intelligence became a more important part of the game than other genres of ai, from the movemaking to the vehicle movement . unfortunately, the game was closed down without releasing a single free version. the next year they tried to recapture the korean audience, but the effort was doomed to failure; rose online is a convoluted mmo designed to adapt the gaming experience to the korean market. despite its length, kim mun'gyu ended up serving as producer on the last few games of the title, while remaining the ceo of the studio, but in 2005 gravity sold it off to eleven media. although still in development, rose online was shut down in may 2005 3, becoming the second casualty of the korean online game business.
